

Greed

The Greedy Squirrel

The Greedy Squirrel

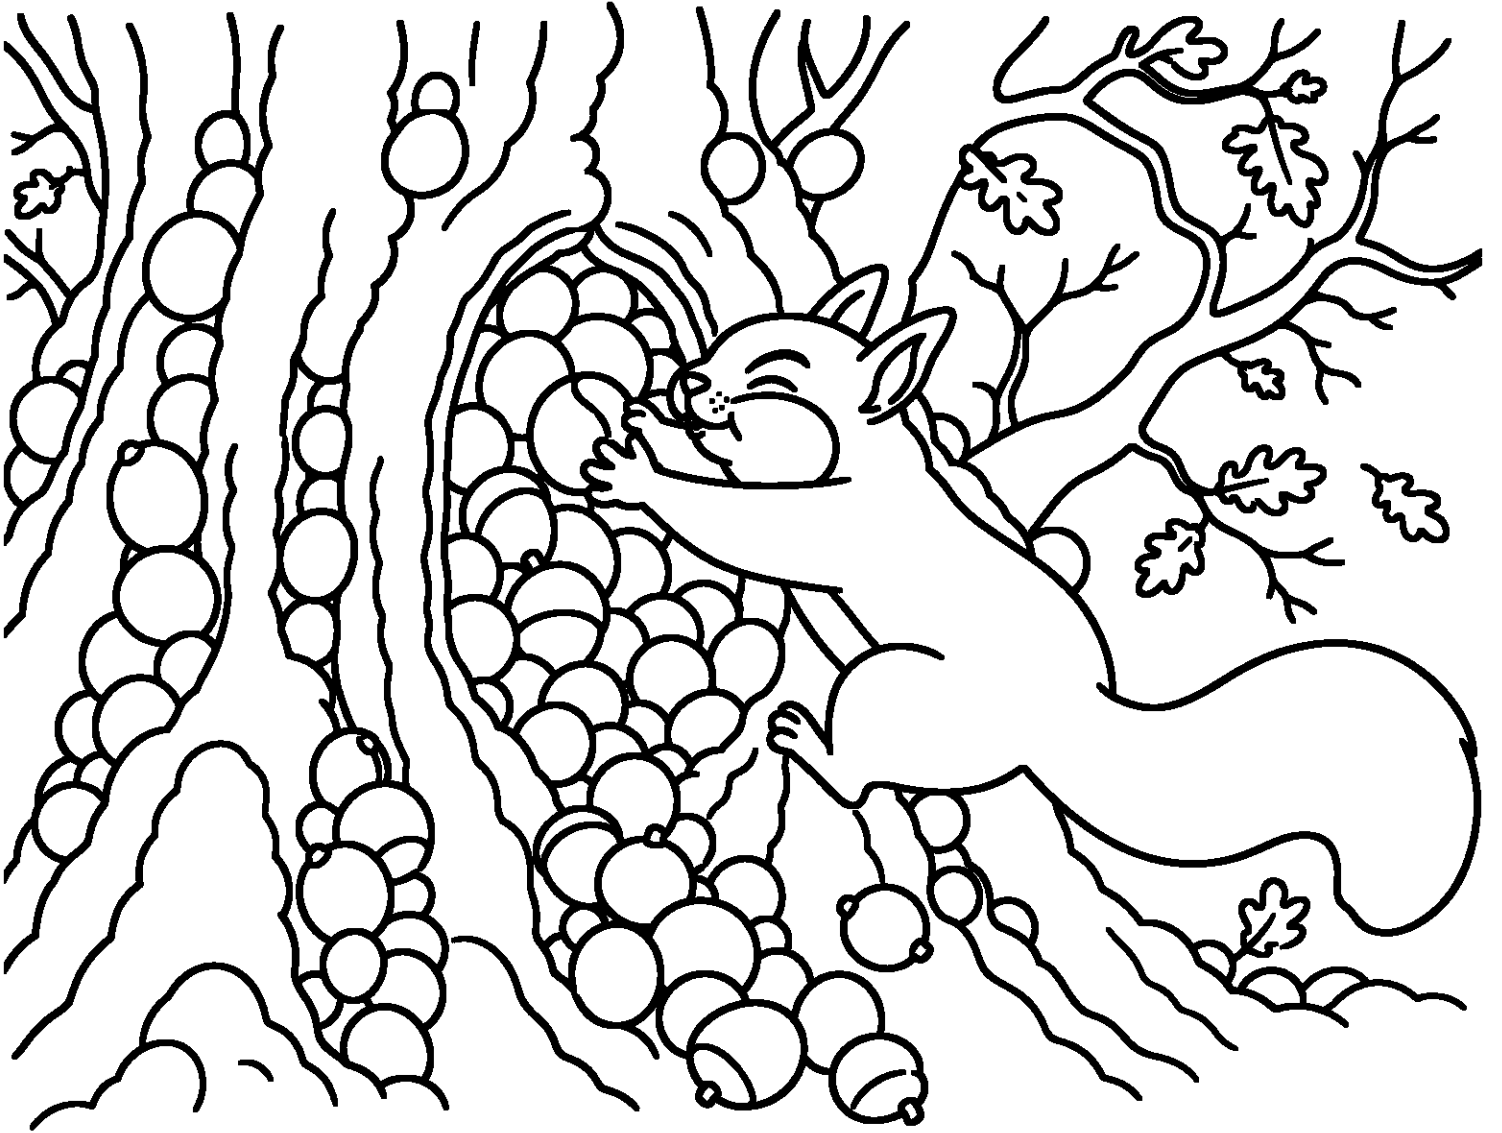

A squirrel found a hoard of nuts,
no sharing, and no ifs or buts.
He stuffed his cheeks, he packed his tree,
"It's all for me, for me, for me!"

The Greedy Squirrel

He grabbed the acorns off the ground,
he snatched each nut that could be found.
The other creatures, small and meek, had nothing left to find or seek.

The Greedy Squirrel

His hollow trunk could hold no more,
yet still he scratched at nature's door.

Until one day it grew too great,
and down it tumbled, on its weight.

The Greedy Squirrel

And there he saw what greed had cost:
his home, his health, his friendships lost.
For those who grab at more than need will often lose it all to greed.

The Greedy Squirrel

Moral

Grab too much and hold it tight,
and you will lose it overnight.
